

PTNow Tips for Second-Year PT Students

---

By Alana Papa, SPT, The University of Scranton

What is PTNow?

PTNow is a website that is available for FREE with your APTA membership that provides clinical resources for physical therapists, physical therapist assistants, and students.

How can I use PTNow to understand applied clinical content?

- Rehabilitation Reference Center access includes general practice resources (textbooks and clinical reviews) and patient education materials (handouts, summaries of health conditions, and exercise images).
- Clinical practice guidelines and Cochrane reviews: Systematic review of current evidence—information published within 5 years by APTA sections and other health care organizations
- Clinical summaries use evidence on managing patient conditions, including overview of condition, diagnosis, prognosis, and medical management, and case study examples.

What else can PTNow help me with?

- Tests and measures: Information on administration and statistical interpretation assists in choosing valid and reliable measures for specific patient diagnoses.
- ArticleSearch: Full-text access to research databases.